November Bill:

This month, he escalates his campaign to suppress the will of the people, targeting referendum petitions that challenge ordinance changes - Nearly every line item on the attorney bills is a telephone conference with Supervisor Hibbard, yet he claims—without a hint of irony—that only one bill during his year in office is due to him.

These ordinance changes were already rejected in the public survey—a survey he himself commissioned to gauge the “pulse of the people.” That “pulse” was ignored the moment it conflicted with the board's voting majority.

What happened to his campaign promise to “listen to the will of the people”?
